Chapter 1 by Will Coloff

I walked through the rows on medical beds to one door at the end of the room marked with "Do not enter" on it, we walk in to find a hallway, we walk to the end to find another door, this one has an ID scanner, I shove my card into the reader and the door makes a click and opens slowly. I walk in and find a research lab with a big window on one side with one man in it. I walk to the closet and get my hazmat suit on and seal it tight. I walk into the first room of the "Airlock" and close the door, I open the other side and walk in, the first man to be in that room since they got the man in their, Patient 1342-Z, the 18th man infected with the 14554-Q-112 Virus, the most deadly one yet.

Chapter 2 by Glowy-Druglord

He looked almost monstrous, the white of his eyes almost blood red, foam flecked at the corners of his mouth. His skin had a very pale look to it, purple splotches all over his skin, some even peeling off of his own bones. He was hunched over, his limbs twitching against his own will. He was making low pitiful moans and whimpers, but he stopped when I entered the room, his insane eyes sliding over to me.

I was frightened, his condition was already quite bad and I didn't want to aggravate him more. I brought him some water and a few things to help him feel better.

I'm so glad to trigger the alarm if he tried to harm me. I turned it down because I've been stretched for me pulled a needle off of a examination table beside me. He seemed to notice it and let out an enraged scream, lunging for me. I triggered the alarm quickly, jamming the needle into the subject's neck.
